EUROCLIO IHEA project 2014-17

This is to confirm that Richard Kennett was selected to be part of a team of history teachers from across Europe to work on this project. His role was to develop high quality learning resources to promote historical thinking. He made source collections and learning activities. He wrote blogposts explaining teaching strategies. He advised the EUROCLIO team on the development of an online e-activity builder and trialled prototypes online. He was an inspiring, solution-focused and collegiate team member who delivered everything to a very high spec and on time. His team members and the wider EUROCLIO community learnt much from him.
